Tocqueville Society Retirement Legacy Program

United Way is making it easier for you to stay active in the Tocqueville Society, even into your retirement. Thanks to a generous matching fund from a United Way donor, you continue your personal legacy as a champion of families, seniors, children, and people with disabilities, today.

How the Tocqueville Society Retirement Legacy Program Works.
This limited time opportunity is available to any current Tocqueville Society member who is in the process of retiring, or has recently retired. These members may extend their status for a period of two years with a gift of $5,000 per year – half of the traditional Tocqueville Society giving level. Matching funds from a generous United Way donor will cover the remaining $5,000 per year. During this time, a retiring Tocqueville member will continue to have access to special events, volunteer and leadership opportunities. At the end of the two years, the member may choose from several options to continue as a United Way Leader at the highest level.

How to Maintain Your Tocqueville Membership.
- Pair a $5,000 donation with a planned gift of $50,000 or more (if a planned gift is not already established)
- Begin giving at the $10,000 level again
- Use the 3-year Tocqueville Society step-up plan:
  - Year one: $5,000
  - Year two: $7,500
  - Year three: $10,000

Don’t let retirement change the things that matter most. Stay involved in the important work of United Way. Your leadership makes a difference to thousands of people in our community every day. Let’s keep the great work going together.
